

Sarah & Jamin

Hello, _____

We're Sarah and Jamin, and we're grateful you're taking the time to get to know us. We can imagine that considering adoption comes with a mix of emotions and we hope that this profile can help you learn a little bit about who we are.

We want to provide a loving, stable home where our child can feel safe, supported, and encouraged. Thank you for considering us as part of your child's future. We hope our profile gives you a glimpse into who we are, our life, and the family we're so excited to share.

With appreciation,
Jamin and Sarah

Our story

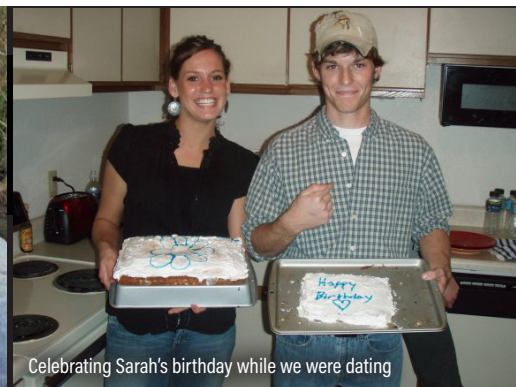

Our wedding day in 2010

We met through mutual friends while we were both attending South Dakota State University. We started dating a few months after we met and now have been married for over 15 years.

We have built a steady, supportive partnership through open communication, mutual respect, and a genuine enjoyment of life with each other. Together, we enjoy spending time outdoors, visiting new places, and gathering with our friends and family for good food and conversation. We're so excited to become parents, and adoption feels like the path we were meant to take to start our family.

A little about Sarah and a lot of pictures of

I grew up on a ranch right outside of Badlands National Park in a big family. I have four siblings, nieces, nephews and a ton of first cousins who I love spending time with. I'm a creative, curious, empathetic, sarcastic and outgoing person who loves connecting with people. Family and friends are very important to me, and I'm grateful for the big community Jamin and I have built together.

I graduated from South Dakota State University with a Bachelor's degree in Graphic Design. I still work as a graphic designer, and creativity has always been a big part of who I am. I love to travel with Jamin, he is my favorite person and I'd pick him to do things with over anyone else. Experiencing new places, cultures and food are some of my favorite things to do. Being outdoors, snowboarding in the winter, hiking in the summer, and just enjoying fresh air and open spaces whenever I can brings me so much joy.

All of these things are part of who I am, and I know they will shape the kind of parent I'll be. I look forward to creating a home where a child feels loved, supported, and encouraged to explore the world.

A little about

Jamin

I grew up on a ranch in South Dakota, and have loved nature and wildlife since I was a child. I graduated with a degree in wildlife and fisheries sciences from South Dakota State University and headed west to the Black Hills. I currently work in law enforcement. I love art, many different types of music, a good story, traveling, and about every outdoor activity except maybe ice fishing. I have been an, often heartbroken, Minnesota Vikings fan since I was a child, and still haven't lost hope for a Superbowl win. Sarah is my favorite person in the world, and even after 15 years of marriage, I would still rather spend time with her than anyone else.

I have two sisters and enjoy spending time with my nieces and nephews whenever I can. I have especially enjoyed getting to see my nephews run cross country and play basketball. I have designated myself as the office barista to save my co-workers from bad coffee. I don't like being the center of attention, and I can periodically come up with a good sarcastic joke. I believe kindness and understanding are incredibly important in the world we live in, and I hope to pass that on to our child.
